

New Supplier Qualification tool

At Repsol, we have made the strategic decision to simplify and unify the management of Supplier Qualification in the new SAP Ariba platform, which entails changing our previous qualification tools, such as Adquira in Spain.

This decision is one more step towards the end-to-end unification of our purchasing and supplier management processes in a single integrated platform, with the aim of achieving greater agility and efficiencies in the process.

Global Supplier Qualification Process:

How is the new process?

The main steps of the new Qualification process are described below:

Registration as a Repsol Supplier: You must be previously registered as a Repsol supplier before starting the Qualification process. You can see more details in the guides described in Additional information.

Invitation to Qualification: As a Repsol supplier, you will receive an invitation to start the Qualification process with us. If you were previously qualified with Repsol in a previous tool, such as Adquira in Spain, it will not be necessary to complete the process again during the validity period of your current qualification, as it will be transferred and respected in Ariba. When your qualification expires, you will receive an invitation to the re-qualification process already in SAP Ariba.

Qualification Questionnaire: You will receive a notification with a link to the qualification questionnaire that you will have to complete on the Ariba Network, providing all the required information. You can also access the rating questionnaire directly from your Ariba Network account.

Approval / Rejection: Repsol will review the information provided and may approve the rating, request additional information or reject it. You will receive a notification from SAP Ariba informing you of the status of your qualification (approved, rejected or additional information is required).

Qualified Supplier: Once your qualification process with Repsol has been approved, you will be qualified as a Repsol supplier with a term defined by Repsol (minimum of 1 year).

Additional Information: In addition to the Qualification process, depending on the type or casuistry of materials or services that it is going to provide, you may receive additional requests during the registration process or the events in which you participate to provide more information about Quality Certificates, Information Financial, Safety or Environment, Data Protection, Competition, etc.
