

Repsol partners with MotoGP™ to become the exclusive lubricant supplier for Moto2™ and Moto3™

- The energy company has signed a technology agreement with the organizer of the MotoGP World Championship, as part of Repsol's ambitious strategy to expand its lubricants business.

Repsol has entered into a strategic alliance with Dorna Sports, the organizer of the MotoGP World Championship, to become the exclusive official supplier of lubricants for the Moto2 and Moto3 categories. This agreement, which will run from 2026 through 2030, marks a significant milestone in the company's global lubricants expansion strategy.

Repsol Lubricants offers a broad portfolio of products for both automotive and industrial applications. All products are tested in advance at the Repsol Technology Lab - one of the most advanced and renowned private R&D centers in Europe, with laboratories equipped with cutting-edge technology and a team of 230 researchers and scientists.

MotoGP provides an environment where performance, reliability, and innovation make a difference in every millisecond. Repsol has a long-standing history in this competition, spanning more than 50 years, accompanying motorcycling legends, including a 30-year alliance with the Repsol Honda Team.

Through this new agreement with MotoGP, Repsol will continue to develop and test its products under the most extreme conditions, to bring the most advanced technology to its commercial offerings worldwide. In fact, as a part of this partnership, Repsol Lubricants will launch a new range of competition-grade products, reinforcing its commitment to motorcyclists by offering lubrication solutions for all types of motorcycles, from high-performance models to everyday use.

Repsol operates lubricant production plants in Spain (Puertollano), Mexico, Indonesia, Singapore, and the Philippines, and also has access to third-party plants, enabling it to supply products to Moto2 and Moto3 teams at any race on the Championship calendar.

Clara Velasco, Director of Repsol Lubricants, said: "This new partnership with MotoGP represents a major step forward in our global growth strategy. We are excited to return to the World Motorcycle Championship and showcase the quality and performance of our lubricants in such a demanding environment. This agreement allows us to continue innovating and improving our products to deliver the very best to our customers."

Valero Marín, Executive Managing Director of Repsol's Customer Division, commented: "Motorsports have always been part of Repsol's DNA, and they will continue to be so. Through Repsol Lubricants, and in line with Repsol's global evolution, this sponsorship allows us to connect with our customers from a more authentic and more emotional place, without compromising the technical rigor that defines us. We aim to be that co-pilot that ensures that every kilometer is traveled smoothly, confidently, and with purpose."

Dan Rossomondo, Commercial Director at Dorna Sports: "Fans who love MotoGP already recognize Repsol for its reputation of excellence and success in this sport. That's why we're proud to welcome them back to the championship. We know that riders and teams will benefit from cutting-edge technology with Repsol as the lubricant supplier for Moto2 and Moto 3. It's also great news that the company is taking on the main sponsorship of a Grand Prix and lending its name to the circuit. As MotoGP continues its impressive growth trajectory, there is no better time to welcome Repsol as an official partner and begin a new chapter together."
